Michael Campbell _____ A Living Legend

19 June 2005

New Zealand's parliament had suspended its session to watch their fellow countryman write history: Michael Campbell defeated one of the greatest golfers of all time, Tiger Woods, in Pinehurst (North Carolina) on the final day in the 2005 US Open.

A native Maori and descendent of New Zealand's first Scottish settlers, Michael began playing golf at the tender age of 7. As from 1988, he represented New Zealand in international amateur competitions. Cambo (as he is known) quickly established himself on the European Tour after three Challenge Tour wins in 1994. He won the Alfred Dunhill Masters in 1995 and the Johnnie Walker Classic in 1999. In 2000 he finished fourth on the European Tour Order of Merit and won the PGA Tour of Australasia's Order of Merit with wins at the New Zealand Open, Ericsson Masters and the Heineken Classic. He defended his Heineken Classic trophy in 2001 and again finished in the top ten on the European Tour Order of Merit in 2002. In 2005, besides becoming a most unexpected US Open champion, he also won the HSBC World Match Play Championship.

At present, Michael is focusing on sharing his joy and love of golf at the Michael Campbell Golf Academy at Villa Padierna and uses the game to teach junior participants to value persistence, strive for achievement and remain resilient throughout their lifetimes. And, he is pursuing again his dream to compete at the highest level of play: Cambo is preparing for a fully-fledged comeback on the senior circuit after turning 50 in February 2019, the minimum age for eligibility.

State-of-the-art facilities, one of the best driving ranges on the Costa del Sol and peerless service guarantee a golf experience to remember.

Andalusia, Spanish to the Core

The more you know her,
the more you love her;
and yet, the more you know her,
the less you can describe her:

The Beauty of Andalusia

Located in the south of the Iberian Peninsula, the mesmerically beautiful landscapes of Andalusia – from the snow-capped mountains of Sierra Nevada down to the sun-kissed sands of the Costa del Sol – are providing the setting and backdrop for a vivid and varied cultural heritage. The region's Christian, Jewish and Islamic influences are also alive in the tempting array of local dishes.

Probably no other region in Spain encapsulates the quintessence of the country better than Andalusia. Its beauty, history and passion are nothing short of life-affirming.

And blessed with more than 320 days of sun a year and over 70 golf courses, golf players are at the top of their game on the Costa del Sol.
