Andalusia

Located in the south of the Iberian Peninsula, the mesmerically beautiful landscapes of Andalusia – from the snow-capped mountains of Sierra Nevada down to the sun-drenched sands of the Costa del Sol – are providing the setting and backdrop for a vivid and varied cultural heritage. The region's Christian, Jewish and Islamic influences are still alive in the tempting array of local dishes. Probably no other region in Spain encapsulates the quintessence of the country better than Andalusia. Its beauty, history and passion are nothing short of life-affirming ... Where time does not exist and life tastes different.

Spanish to the Core

Villa Padierna Golf Club

Flamingos

Flamingos Golf played host to the European Senior Tour in 2002, 2003 and 2004 as well as the Ladies European Tour (LET) in 2010. With enveloping views of the Mediterranean, it has become an epitome of big-time golf on the Costa del Sol. Pleasing any calibre of player, it is by far the best known and most popular course of Villa Padierna Golf Club.

Alferini

Well ensconced between undulating greens, Alferini Golf is the most challenging of the three golf courses of Villa Padierna: 6'641 m of pure golf indulgence whilst wallowing in mesmerically beautiful and blissfully quiet surroundings. Not surprisingly, Alferini is the course of choice of pros and triple A players (= amateurs with an aspirational attitude :).

Tramores

Villa Padierna's third golf course is an executive course thus taking less time to complete but yet affording a great deal of fun and enjoyment, and commanding accuracy. A highly attractive option to hone your short game whilst avoiding long days on a golf course. Tramores Golf is equally suitable for junior golfers, beginners and time-strapped golfers.
